Uber (ride sharing app) has raised $1.1 billion in fresh funding from a slew of financial institutions including JPMorgan, Morgan Stanley, BlackRock and Visa. According to a Reuters report on Wednesday, the funding has been raised through a series of secondary shares sale by existing investors like Benchmark Capital and General Catalyst. The round is reportedly estimated to be worth around $75 billion. Uber's shares also got a healthy boost on Thursday as the shares rose over 5 percent. According to the website, Uber also began to raise funds through a two-year $1.25 billion debt round in May this year. This funding round comes at a time when Uber has been trying to resolve controversy over the alleged sexual harassment case against founder Travis Kalanick. Along with the funding round, many investors were impressed by the company's recent performance in the stock market. Investors were also convinced about the company's ability to not only compete with rival apps like Lyft but also the traditional taxi industry. Uber's competitor Lyft was also the source of rumors that it is filing for an initial public offering (IPO) early next year, but Lyft denied this. The 5 Reasons Chicago Cubs Will Win the World Series How do you explain Chicago's inability to win the World Series? Is it true that the Cubs have won the last seven titles? Being as the Chicago Cubs are some distance from title contention, you can forgive them for thinking their title drought was the most amazing thing ever. But the more you look at the numbers, the more they go against the Cubs and for the Indians. This year, the Indians lead the AL Central with a winning record of 88-64. In 2010, the last World Series, the Indians finished the season with a record of 90-72, which included two one-run losses, and finished 2.5 games ahead of the Chicago Cubs. But there is something that is not mentioned on the winning trophy at Progressive Field. The Indians do not have a franchise rookie of the year in the AL. Since 2006, only one rookie has won Rookie of the Year in the AL, and it was in 2003 with Ichiro Suzuki, who was the AL Rookie of the Year. So, on the surface of the numbers, the Indians have the edge over the Cubs. But, when it comes to pitching and defense, the Cubs will not be a pushover. 1. Fielding: The Cubs are one of the best teams in the league at fielding. In
